Permaculture design

For my permaculture logo design, I decided to choose the “renewable resources and services” principle. I decided on this principle because it seemed like an important part of the overall maintenance of a permaculture as renewable resources are consistently seen throughout nature and permacultures thrive on these resources. It can be considered to be more humane to abide by renewables because overreliance on non renewable resources can be detrimental to sustainability of plants and the quality of the environment as a whole. A short phrase to remember is “when the energy is renewed, nature can start anew.” In relation to tech, a sentence to describe the principle would be “Green energy keeps tech earth friendly”.
